Homes.com Announces Free Listing Advertising for Brokers to Help Sell Inventory during These Tough Economic Times

The Homes.com Listing Advantage Network Provides Brokers unprecedented exposure

NORFOLK, Va., October 30, 2008 – Homes.com (www.homes.com), a division of Dominion Enterprises, is now providing free listing exposure to real estate brokers through its Broker Listing Advantage (BLA) product. Four million consumers visit Homes.com each month.

“There is a general consensus that the glut of listing inventory is a major source of fuel for the current economic storm we are in,” say Jason Doyle, vice president of Homes.com. “By opening up our site to allow brokers free listing exposure, we believe we can better facilitate a connection between the millions of consumers coming to Homes.com and the brokers that are trying to get their listings sold.”

Homes.com is also giving Broker’s access to use the Homes.com Listing Advantage Network in select markets. The Listing Advantage Network lets Broker customers automatically syndicate their listings to other leading online real estate destinations. Combined with Homes.com, the sites in the Listing Advantage Network generate more than 18 million unique visitors each month giving Brokers access to more consumers from one single point than any other service.

“Our goal is to connect consumers starting their research process on Homes.com to the leading local brokers and agents in the simplest manner possible while maintaining a great user experience,” says Doyle. “In addition, Brokers are looking for easier and more automated ways to achieve maximum reach on a limited marketing budget. By using the Listing Advantage Network, Brokers can leverage our enterprise data aggregation technology to automatically achieve unprecedented listing exposure without making a large individual investment”

Homes.com will be exhibiting at the NAR 2008 REALTORS® Conference & Expo in Orlando, November 7-10 with Dominion Enterprises real estate businesses Advanced Access, AgentAdvantage®, eNeighborhoods and Number1Expert in booth #2841.
